Project position in the field of Artificial Intelligence (AI) education for young people and the general public, 20 hours/week, starting April 1. 2021, at the Institute for Software Technology, Graz University of Technology.

Conditions for registration:
University degree in relevant areas such as teaching, education, media or computer science in general

Desired qualifications:
Experience in at least one of the areas
- Education and teaching for schools, students or adults
- Multimedia design or web design
- Preparation of teaching and learning materials
- Interest and basic knowledge in Artificial Intelligence
- Creativity in imparting knowledge

as well as good English skills and the ability to work in a team.

Tasks:
Participation in an EU-funded project with the aim of making the topic of Artificial Intelligence in Austria and Hungary accessible to the general public. Possible areas of work are, depending on the qualifications, the preparation of tutorials, teaching and learning materials and presentations; designing attractive material and interactive learning applications; giving teacher training courses as well as student workshops and workshops for a general audience.

Classification:
B1 according to the collective agreement for university staff; the monthly minimum remuneration for this use is currently € 1,485.75 gross (14x per year) and may increase on the basis of the collective bargaining provisions through the crediting of job-specific previous experience and other remuneration components associated with the specifics of the job.

Contact:
Applications, curriculum vitae and other documents are to be sent to Graz University of Technology, Institute for Software Technology, Assoc.Prof. Dipl.-Ing. Dr.techn. Gerald Steinbauer, Inffeldgasse 16b / II, 8010 Graz, (electronically to steinbauer@ist.tugraz.at) and must be received by the end of the application period at the latest.

Application deadline: March 15, 2021